1. Diplomacy and Defense

With the restoration of ties between Japan and China we will settle the accounts of cold war diplomacy and develop a diplomacy of peaceful coexistence. We will work to ease tensions in Asia by refusing to cooperate with the American war of aggression on Vietnam, to discontinue the Fourth Five-Year Defense

Plan, to have the military bases removed, and to call together the nations of Asia to establish a zone free of nuclear weapons. We will promote friendship with China, support the independent and peaceful unification of North and South Korea, conclude a peace treaty with the Soviet Union and settle the Northern Territories issue, abrogate the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty, and establish a system to ensure peace with China, the Soviet Union, Korea, and the U.S., either with each country individually or as a group. We will call for a conference on peace and economic development in Asia that will promote peace and self-reliance through the development of economic cooperation. We will promote a diplomacy of peaceful neutrality based on the Peace Constitution and the Five Principles of Peace.

2. Restructuring the Country

We will confront "The Restructuring of the Japanese Archipelago" which will wreck the land and spread pollution throughout the country. 1) In order to preserve our comfortable living environment and the beauty of nature, we will enact a fundamental law to preserve the environment. 2) We will control pollution at the source by enacting a plan for the use of resources, by discontinuing large scale development projects that will destroy nature, and by making it a duty for companies to prevent pollution. 3) We will require local permits for development projects and land transactions above a certain size, and thus prevent the uncontrolled development by big capitalists. 4)

We will have regional plans drawn up primarily by residents and local governments, strengthen the authority of local governments, and push for the redevelopment of large cities and the maintenance of regional cities. 5) We will prevent disasters, expand the facilities for education and culture, and create new garden cities that will unify city and rural communities. 6) Through a large scale government reforestation effort, we will make the mountains green again, and through an undertaking to purify the seas, we will bring back the seas in which fish can live.

3. National Life

We will revise the high growth policy based on large corporations and change the economy to give priority to national life. With government aid, we will hold down increases in public utility charges. We will strengthen the authority of the Fair Trade Council by giving it rights to investigate cost prices and to regulate prices by monopolies. We will push for the improvement of the production of food and for the improvement of distribution such as by making direct connections to producers. We will strengthen the public management of land and hold down land prices. We will carry out cuts in taxes for the masses by abolishing the preferential treatment of large corporations in tax measures, reinforcing taxes on entertainment expenses, allowing up to 500 thousand yen of labor income tax free for five member families, abolishing taxes on individual enterprises, and reducing residential taxes.

4. Social Welfare

We will stop increases in military spending and instead expand social welfare. We will raise from fiscal year 1973 welfare pensions to 60 thousand yen a month (the guaranteed minimum being 40 thousand yen), national pensions for couples to a guaranteed minimum of 40 thousand yen, and old age pensions for couples who are both over 65 years old to 20 thousand yen. We will change the pension system from one that is based on a reserve fund to one that is based on levies, and we will automatically raise pensions as wages increase. We will provide free medical care to the aged, infants, the handicapped, and those with incurable diseases. We will implement a system of free medical checkups to housewives. We will increase the number of nursery schools and significantly expand old age nursing homes, specialized hospitals for the aged, facilities for the physically handicapped, and other welfare facilities.

5. Political Position

We will protect fundamental human rights, such as the constitutionally protected rights of speech, freedom of thought, and employment; and we will block reactionism in education and the administration of justice, revive and develop parliamentary democracy, foster self-government by residents, and make the Peace Constitution a part of the life of the people. We will revise the law regulating political funds and thereby sweep away corruption and breakup the influence of money in politics. We will push for the public management of elections and correct the imbalance in the number of Diet seats so that the will of the people is correctly reflected in the Diet. Based on the demands of the people for peace and better living, we will establish a national coalition government that brings together the anti-LDP forces.

1. Diplomacy and Defense

Through a diplomacy of independence and equidistant neutrality, we aim to promote peace and neutrality in Asia. In order to this, we will do the following: 1) protect the Peace Constitution and block the Fourth Five-Year Defense Plan and other policies designed to buildup the military, 2) push for the removal of American military bases and realize the early dissolution of the Japan-U.S. security system, 3) establish permanent peace and friendship between Japan and China, 4) have the Northern Territories (Habomai, Shikotan, Kunashiri, and Etorofu Islands) returned and conclude a peace treaty with the Soviet Union, 5) foster friendly ties with Korea, 6) increase government assistance to developing countries and push for a system of economic coexistence and mutual cooperation, and 7) oppose the American Indochina war of aggression and request that the U.S. withdraw its troops from Asia. In addition, we will call for the establishment of a U.N. Asian Headquarters in Japan, a conference
