

will span among other fields the social security system, education, the labor system, housing policy, old age policy, and community policy.

4. Diplomacy and Defense

We will promote close cooperation with the various countries that share our values of liberalism and democracy, and we will especially further our friendship with the U.S., which serves as the basis for the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty. We will strive to conclude at an early date the Japan-China Friendship Treaty. We will work to conclude a Japan-Soviet peace treaty, on the basis that the four islands of Shikotan, Habomai, Etorofu, and Kunashiri be returned to the homeland. Based on the Japan-U.S. security system, we will work to satisfactorily provide for our defense strength in accordance with our national resources and the state of affairs in the country. In particular, we will equip our defense setup, keeping in mind our recent experience with the MIG-25 incident.

JAPAN SOCIALIST PARTY J2:76
NARITA, CHAIRMAN

1. Political Discipline

We will resolve suspicions relating to the Kodama route and the next generation of anti-submarine aircraft, publish the names of the "gray" officials, and reveal the structure of political corruption under conservative rule by making public all the materials relating to the Lockheed affair. By instituting measures such as the cessation of dealings between dishonest companies and public institutions, the complete banning of political donations by corporations, the heavy taxing of entertainment expenses which serve as a hotbed for corruption, the releasing of government documents to the public on a regular basis, and the releasing to the public the details regarding the assets of politicians, we will eradicate corruption and the influence of money in politics. We will ensure the public's right to know by expanding the public management of elections and strengthening the mechanisms overseeing administration and the right to investigate the government, and thus rebuild parliamentary democracy with the participation of the public.

2. Electoral System

In order to realize elections that do not cost money, we will strive to make public management of elections complete by expanding, for instance, the use of television and establish an election system based on parties as units. We will correct the imbalances in the number of diet members, and adopt a proportional representational system for the Upper House "national" constituency using a restricted list of names. We oppose the adoption of small election districts. We will start the right to vote at age 18 and the right to run for election at age 21, and thus expand the opportunities of the public to participate in politics. We will promote the conduct of fair elections and ban political donations and political activity by corporations, strengthen punishments for election law violations such as by increasing the time that those convicted are deprived of their civil rights, strengthen laws which hold candidates jointly responsible for election law violations committed by their campaign managers or finance officers, and work to restrict the candidacies of high level bureaucrats.

3. Domestic Affairs

In order to stabilize prices, we will revise the Anti-Monopoly Law and restrict prices by cartels and monopolies, revise the system of public utilities charges that gives favorable treatment to corporations and introduce a civil minimum, obtain the approval by the Diet of a national investment and loan program, and strive to democratize the economy so that labor representatives can participate in the Bank of Japan policy committee.

We will increase consumer expenditures by carrying out a price adjustment tax cut this year and a 30 thousand yen per person, 1 trillion yen income tax cut. And we will strive to revive the economy by promoting the building of large scale public housing and other investment related to living.

We will stop the 4 trillion yen favorable tax treatment given to corporations, raise welfare pensions by 4 thousand yen per month, take responsibility at public expense of the health insurance fees for low income earners, and work to provide for a network of emergency hospitals. We will promote emergency aid to farmers for damages to crops by cold weather and disasters and reconstruct the primary sector of the economy. We will enact a protection law for the small and medium sized businesses' field of operations.

4. Diplomacy and Defense

We will promote an active and neutral diplomacy that will conclude a Japan-U.S. friendship treaty after abrogating the security treaty with the U.S. and removing U.S. military bases, normalize relations with Korea, and conclude peace treaties with China and the Soviet Union. We will respect the sovereignty of developing countries, strengthen our friendship and solidarity with those countries, and cooperate in their economic self-reliance.

We oppose the fourth five-year defense plan, which will overthrow the Peace Constitution and strive for a qualitative military buildup. And we will carry out, with the aim towards demilitarization, a reduction in the Self-Defense Forces and drastic cuts in defense spending. To proceed towards the realization of nuclear disarmament, permanent world peace, and demilitarization, we will promote peace diplomacy and raise the prestige of Japan as the standard bearer of peace.
