1. Political Discipline

The Lockheed affair was brought about by the corrupt politics of the LDP that spanned over the years. We aim to break up corrupt politics through the thorough investigation of the affair. In order to do this, we will make public the names of "gray" officials and thoroughly investigate the full story of the incident. At the same time, in order to prevent a recurrence of such incidents, we will work to set up a body of experts to oversee administration, make completely public the management of elections, and strengthen the punishments for corruption. In addition, by concentrating on constructive reforms as alternatives to the LDP, we will realize the smooth transfer of power in a way that will reassure the public, and we will break up the alliance set up among political, bureaucratic, and business worlds.

2. Electoral System

We aim to realize a "moneyless" election system that will reflect the will of the people.

In particular, we will work towards correcting the imbalances in the representation of election districts, which has been ruled unconstitutional. And we will immediately realize the addition of 18 seats to the Upper House in time for next year's Upper House election.

We oppose the LDP supported introduction of small election districts which is an undemocratic action that will widen the already conspicuous imbalances in the voting rates and the representation of districts.

In order to realize "moneyless" elections, if a sum amounting to half of the legal amount for campaign expenditures is submitted, then all will be publicly managed.

3. Domestic Affairs

We will revise the Anti-Monopoly Law, establish a stable supply system of fresh food, restrict price gouging, and strive to implement other measures that will stabilize prices. By carrying out a 1 trillion yen income tax cut and reducing residential taxes, we will bring about benefits for families. We will extend the age of retirement, ensure employment for middle and old aged workers, establish a stable employment fund, increase the number of days one can receive unemployment benefits, as well as implementing other measures to protect the life of workers. We will raise our ability to supply ourselves with food by enacting a fundamental law on provisions, by fulfilling price guarantees, by expanding agricultural land, and by striving to develop worthwhile agricultural and fisheries industries. We will strive to promote small and medium sized businesses by enacting a law to ensure their field of operations and a law to regulate restricted savings and by establishing a reserve fund for management foundation expenditures. We will raise significantly the level of national welfare emphasizing the raising of pensions, the reforming of the medical care system, and the fulfillment and strengthening of social welfare. We will get rid of examination hell, increase aid to private schools, and other measures that will revise education in a way to increase the level of humanity in schools.

4. Diplomacy and Defense

We will maintain our country's independence and promote friendship with all countries without regard to differences in political systems. Along with requesting that all the Northern Islands be returned, we will apply all our efforts into settling the North-South problem through economic and technological cooperation. With regard to the Japan-China problem with the anti-hegemony clause, we must persistently be sure that the clause is confined to a general principle. We will preserve defense strength that is based on civilian control, aimed at defense only and maintained at its current scale. As a complement to that, we will immediately evaluate the function of the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty. We will work to form national consensus towards defense by, among other things, establishing a defense committee in the Diet.

1. Political Discipline

It is impossible to prevent corruption as long as politicians and political parties do not deal with the politics by holding strict ethical views. It is important that all dietmen have the determination to reexamine and reform themselves. In the meantime, we will call for an investigation regarding the way elections should be run. We will expand the public management of elections and investigate ways that part of the political party activity funds can be borne by the national treasury. Moreover, without the trust of the public towards politics, no matter how good the policy, it is not possible to advance legislation smoothly. In order to maintain and develop a liberal society, the birth of a new conservative party was necessary. We seek the active participation of the public and aim for lucid, easy to understand politics.
