

only deepened. The increase in the number of parties is the counterattack of the nation against this. In order to establish parliamentary politics of a new stage, our party will democratically mediate the diversified demands of the nation, reform social institutions, and will raise the nation's confidence in politics, which is the foundation of parliamentary politics, by firmly maintaining constructive policies that will allow everyone to enjoy an equal and high level of welfare.

KOMEITO/CLEAN GOVERNMENT PARTY (CGP) JS:69

1. Security and Okinawa

We will protect the Peace Constitution and realize equidistant and complete neutrality. We will realize the reestablishment of Japan-China diplomatic relations, create concrete measures like the location of the Asian headquarters of the United Nations in Japan, etc., to correspond with the dissolution of the Security Treaty, will bring about a de facto depowering of the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty--that will involve Japan in war--through the the removal of bases, etc., and will strive to quickly dissolve [it] during the 1970's in an active and step-by-step manner. We will realize the immediate participation of Okinawa in national government and will strive for the economic independence of Okinawa through large-scale fiscal aid based on a comprehensive economic development plan by the time of its 1972 return. In particular, we will strongly oppose the introduction of nuclear weapons and the free use of bases in times of emergency, promote the removal of nuclear weapons, B-52's and CB weapons and the removal of military bases including nuclear bases, and will realize a real unconditional return.

2. Tax Cuts and the Cost of Living

We will oppose increases in the consumers' rice price and in public utility charges. We will eliminate large corporation administered prices, price cartels, and so on, and will strive to completely implement fair and effective competition. We will promote the modernization of low production sectors, reform the distribution structure for perishable food items, and restrain continued increases in the cost of living. We will lighten the tax burden, which directly affects the consumer prices. We will make up to an annual income of 1.3 million yen and, in the case of resident taxes up to 1 million yen, tax-free for a standard household. In addition, we will establish a children's deduction of 100,000 yen and a housing deduction of 60,000 yen. Furthermore, we will remove special tax breaks which give preference to large corporations and will dissolve unfairnesses in taxation.

3. The Universities

We will respect freedom of education and campus self-government to the end and will oppose violence absolutely. As for campus strife, we will establish campus democratic deliberation committees in which students participate in universities and departments, strive for resolution through democratic procedures, and will establish a relationship of trust between students and the universities. In addition, we will open universities to the nation's masses by implementing college seminars broadcast over television and evening courses at national universities, transferability of degrees conferred, and other reforms of the university system. We will strive for equality of opportunity of education [through measures to] strengthen private universities, [establish] a system of loans for entrance fees, etc., and will realize education that is rich in human character.

4. The Rice Crop

In order to protect the livelihoods of farm households and consumers, we will firmly maintain the food control system. The adjustment of rice production should not be conducted through the lowering of producer rice prices or the restriction of purchases, such as those being considered by the government, and we shall promote the conversion of cultivation with the understanding of farmers and farmer organizations. As for cultivation conversion policies, we shall make clear geographically which crops should be converted under a long-term supply and demand outlook and through this will promote [them] under the condition of price guarantees that allow for incomes comparable to that from rice cultivation. As for surplus rice, we will strive for effective disposal through the construction of low-humidity storage facilities, school lunches, export assistance, and so on.

5. Parliamentary Politics

We will establish parliamentary politics for the nation. For this purpose, we will promote the liberalization of election campaigns, revise the Regulation of Money for Political Funds Act so that only contributions by individuals will be allowed, and will banish the black mist. In order to protect the Peace Constitution and protect democracy, we oppose the small electoral district system. In order to eliminate the tyranny of the majority and normalize the Diet, we will revise Diet-related laws, [require] the renunciation of party affiliation by the speaker and vice speaker, establish a petitions committee, and will distribute chairmanships of standing and special committees in accordance with the proportion of seats held by the various parties. In addition, as for forcible adoption [of legislative bills] and other unfair voting [practices], we will realize the power of the speaker to suspend these, and so on.

JAPAN COMMUNIST PARTY (JCP) 54:65

1. Security and Okinawa

Along with the return of sovereignty, the conclusion of an Okinawa return agreement that decides the complete withdrawal of all U.S. military bases and the withdrawal of U.S. troops and the realization of the complete return of Okinawa Prefecture. We will immediately establish a "Special Measures Law for the Recovery of Okinawa Prefecture" and will strive for the recovery of the Okinawan economy and the peaceful development of its economy. We oppose the scheme in the Japan-U.S. joint statement to revise the Security Treaty for the worse to allow the free conduct of sorties by U.S. troops in return for a "hidden nuclear weapons return" and uses all of Japan as the fulcrum in an Asian anti-communist military alliance. We will create a democratic front government through a united front of peace, neutrality and democracy, will abrogate the Security Treaty by utilizing the
