1. Diplomacy and Defense

Through a diplomacy of independence and equidistant neutrality, we aim to promote peace and neutrality in Asia. In order to this, we will do the following: 1) protect the Peace Constitution and block the Fourth Five-Year Defense Plan and other policies designed to buildup the military, 2) push for the removal of American military bases and realize the early dissolution of the Japan-U.S. security system, 3) establish permanent peace and friendship between Japan and China, 4) have the Northern Territories (Habomai, Shikotan, Kunashiri, and Etorofu Islands) returned and conclude a peace treaty with the Soviet Union, 5) foster friendly ties with Korea, 6) increase government assistance to developing countries and push for a system of economic coexistence and mutual cooperation, and 7) oppose the American Indochina war of aggression and request that the U.S. withdraw its troops from Asia. In addition, we will call for the establishment of a U.N. Asian Headquarters in Japan, a conference on peace in Asia and the Pacific, and a nonaggression treaty with the countries of Asia and the Pacific.

2. Restructuring the Country

We oppose the plan to restructure the Japanese archipelago, which gives precedence to providing the industrial foundation to maintain high economic growth. Instead, we will eliminate pollution, restore nature, develop the welfare society, and push for an economy that emphasizes welfare. The development of land that gives precedence to the living environment is being hindered by the large scale cornering of the land market. We will enact a fundamental law for land use and establish a plan for land use that restricts private interests. By strengthening first rights of local governments to buy land, regulating the effective cornering of the land market, taxing separately the corporate income derived from transfer of land, and taxing undeveloped land, we will hold down land prices, rationalize land use, and thus give precedence to the fulfillment of the living environment. We will enact a fundamental law to preserve the environment, implement regulations that will control the overall volume of discharge, regulate the location of key resources industry, and strive to provide aid to victims of pollution. We will push for the restoration of greenery and nature throughout the land.

3. National Life

We will correct the applied principle of independent commercial profit from public utility charges so that beneficiaries will pay for part of the projects, and thereby stop increases in those charges. We will strive to strengthen the regulation of cartels and the supervision of prices, make the most of our import policy, and rationalize the production and distribution of food. We will reorganize the special tax measures that give preferential treatment to the taxing of the income of large corporations and income from property, and we will allow, tax free, income of the standard four member family of up to 1.5 million yen and resident taxes of up to 1.3 million yen. We will abolish business taxes for small scale individual enterprises and the electric and gas taxes for families. We will strive to establish deductions for marriage loans and deductions for housing and house rent.

4. Social Welfare

We will revise the pension system so that it uses a revised levy method and increase welfare pensions to 60 thousand yen a month, national pensions for couples to 60 thousand yen, and old age pensions to 30 thousand yen a month. We will extend the retirement age to 60 years and over. We will provide free medical care to those 60 years and over, babies and infants under 3 years of age, and those afflicted with incurable diseases. We will increase the the number of facilities for those with special needs, such as the aged and the blind. We will strengthen policy for the seriously mentally or physically handicapped and for children. We will promote the realization of child allowances of 3 thousand yen per month for all children and an allowance of 50 thousand yen for childbirths. We will correct the gaps in medical care services such as in areas with no such services, and we will strive for the realization of providing health insurance coverage to 10 percent of the principal beneficiaries and 90 percent of the families. We will push for the fulfilled supply of social welfare facilities in next year's plan.

5. Political Position

We will protect the Peace Constitution, establish parliamentary democracy, protect fundamental human rights, realize the politics of giving preference to national welfare, and strive for peace in and the neutralization of Asia based on an independent, equidistant, and neutral diplomacy. In order to do this, we will crush the LDP aspirations to realize small election districts and to change the Constitution for the worse, and we will strengthen regulations of political funds and cut out the roots of the influence of money in politics and strive to change the political situation by bringing together the centrist reformist powers. In addition, we will correct the imbalances in the number of Diet seats (the largest imbalance being 5 to 1) and strive for equity in the rights of the people.
