The cause of back door admissions to schools is because the entrance decisions based on faculty meeting deliberations are not being adhered to. The Ministry of Education must display strong leadership.

It is necessary to improve high school entrance examinations by making school districts smaller. University entrance examinations will move toward a more comprehensive system that includes, in addition to paper tests, essays and interviews. It is also necessary to abolish the system of eliminating candidates who have failed to score a certain number of points on the first round, to improve the common first round entrance examinations so that private universities can participate, and to improve the second round examinations.

TAKEIRI, CHAIRMAN

1. Tax Increase

We are resolutely opposed to a general consumption tax, an increase in income taxes, and other increased taxes on people that would compel sacrifices by the people and put pressure on the family finances and corporate management.

We will not pursue financial reconstruction through one-sided burdens on the people, as the government advocates. Rather, we propose to decide on a medium term plan. We plan to secure tax revenues by realizing stable economic growth, revising the tax system primarily through the reform and elimination of special tax exemption laws and other unfair aspects of the tax system, carrying out administrative reform and reductions in administrative expenses, rationalizing and readjusting subsidies, as well as other means to reduce overall administrative expenses. We will also place priority on making efficient the Japan National Railways, the special account for food control, and health insurance.

2. Inflation and Energy

Concern over inflation is strong, but inflation can be held in check by preventing price gouging in petroleum and other products and by carrying out appropriate price policies. We will strive to regulate demand, to secure smooth supplies of petroleum products and eliminate price gouging, to strengthen the enforcement of the Anti-Monopoly Law, to hold down public utility charges, and to strengthen policies toward food prices.

We want to prevent the introduction of the general consumption tax, which would invite price increases. We will promote energy conservation. We will establish friendship with countries with resources and increase imports of oil, coal, and LNG. We will promote the development of oil domestically and abroad. We will promote the development of hydro, thermal, and other domestic sources of power. We will further the research development of solar and other new types of renewable sources of power. We will strengthen and establish the safety of nuclear power. We will promote the research and development of fusion power.

3. Correction of Political Corruption

1) We will strengthen restrictions on political contributions (such as prohibiting corporate contributions and allowing only individual contributions, and publicly disclosing political contributions given to Dietmen). 2) Our goal is to realize "costless elections." We will strive for the strict enforcement of the Election Law which limits campaign expenses, as well as other means to fulfill the public management of elections. 3) We will abolish use of official positions by elite bureaucrats. 4) We will strengthen the regulations related to corruption. 5) We will establish a "government investigation law" to fulfill the investigative ability of the Diet. 6) We will establish a Japanese SEC and rationalize the activities of large corporations by strengthening laws auditing accounts. 7) We will push for the establishment of "political ethic principles" which will be regarded by Dietmen as political and moral norms.

4. Welfare and Expenditures

We will fulfill welfare by securing priority for the social security budget and by setting reasonable charges. In order to put the health insurance system on sound footing, we must reduce the expenses on drugs, rationalize the expenses of the government, and realize an old age medical insurance system. We will realize a national pension system and provide securities for life in old age.

In order to ensure employment for those in middle and old age, we will enact an employment antidiscrimination law.

5. Diplomacy and Defense

We will protect the Constitution. And to build peace for Japan and Asia through an equidistant completely neutral policy, we will strive to do the following: 1) negotiate a mutual agreement to abrogate the security treaty and conclude a non-aggression treaty with the United States; 2) promote friendship with China; 3) bring about the return of the Northern territories and conclude a peace treaty with the Soviet Union; 4) promote peace and friendship with the various countries of Asia; 5) eliminate all nuclear weapons and push for whole-sale arms reduction; 6) oppose both the passage of the emergency law and increases in military power and oppose the overstated argument that the Soviet's military power is a menace.

6. Education

On conditions that the correction of the education background oriented society and the change in the views of universities as preparations for employment, in order to get rid of the practice of allowing entrance into private medical universities and dentistry groups, it is necessary to revise the medical system by expanding the autonomy and authority of faculty councils and separating them from the administration of schools.

In order to normalize entrance examinations, we will work positively towards correcting the differentials among universities and encouraging interchange between universities. In order to accomplish this, we will strive to establish associations among the national universities which will allow transfers of credit, exchanges of faculty members, and the implementation of a common entrance examination.

SASAKI, CHAIRMAN

1. Tax Increase

The general consumption tax has a number of problems: 1) it is a regressive tax for it places a heavy burden on those in the lower income brackets, 2) it will increase the danger of a sudden jump in prices, and 3) it will significantly increase the burden on small and medium sized businessman and small shopkeepers. We are therefore resolutely opposed to its introduction. We will strive for a thorough reform of administration that will include the consolidation and reorganization of public corporations and government enterprises, the abolishment of the regional finance bureaus and other local agencies of the central government, and the reshuffle of public officials as well as introducing an age-limit system.

We will strive for a financial reconstruction based on the abolishment of the favorable tax treatment of interest and dividend income, on the correction of the unfair tax system by strengthening among other items the separate tax on entertainment expenses, on a 2 percent increase in the tax rate of
